WHAT IS CODEMASH?

CodeMash is a 2.5 day developer conference focusing on fostering the exchange of ideas, enthusiasm, and technology for a cross-platform, cross-discipline audience.

WHO IS THIS FOR?

We're targeting developers in the Java, Ruby, .NET, PHP, Python and other communities and will draw attendees from Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky, Illinois, Indiana, and other nearby states.

WHEN AND WHERE AND HOW?

CodeMash will be held 9-11 January, 2008, at the Kalahari Lodge in Sandusky, Ohio. The 9th is a short day with a discussion panel in the evening; the 10th and 11th are full days. Register at www.CodeMash.org.

WHO'S SPEAKING AND WHAT WILL WE LEARN?

CodeMash has a great lineup of industry leaders including Bruce Eckel, Jesse Liberty, Neal Ford, and Jay Pipes. We've also got a great list of regional experts such as Bill Wagner, Chris Judd, Jason Gilmore, and Joe O'Brien.

You'll hear presentations on topics including Silverlight, Agile development, scaling Rails, Domain Specific Languages, and developing for the Wii game console.
