

35 responses

Summary See complete responses

Would you attend a Python focused conference in Tennessee?

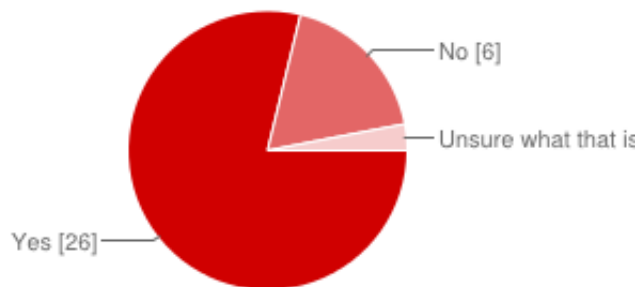

Yes	35	100%
No	0	0%

Would you like it during the week or the weekend?

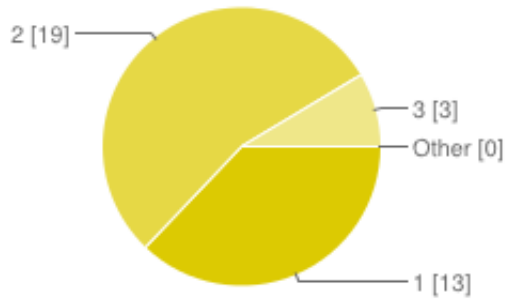

Early Week	3	9%
Late Week	3	9%
Weekend	29	83%

Would you like it to include a Hackathon or a Sprint?

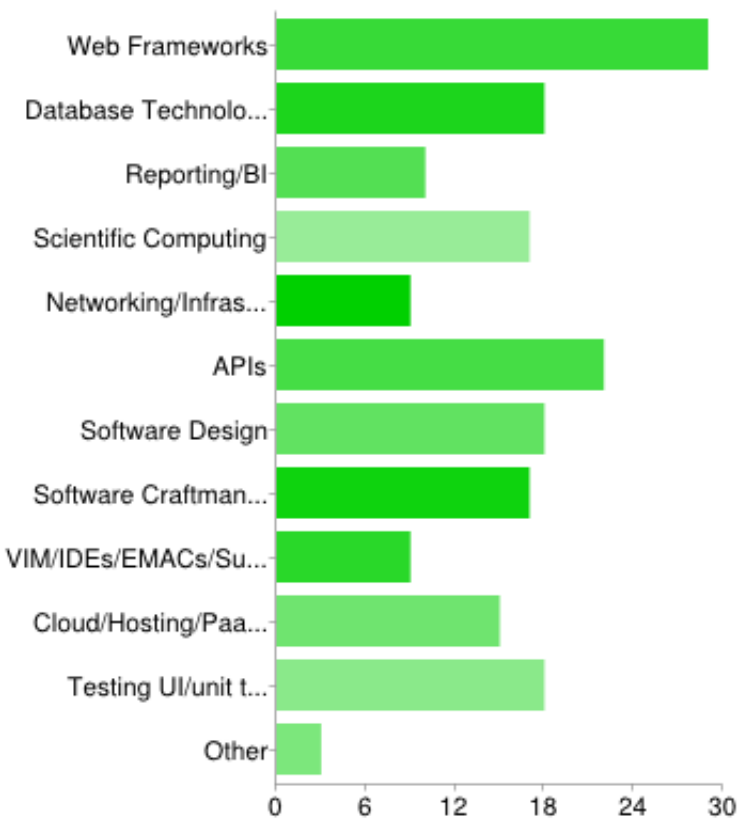

Yes	26	74%
No	6	17%
Unsure what that is	1	3%

How many days would you like it to be?

1	13	37%
2	19	54%
3	3	9%
Other	0	0%

What topics would you like to discuss?

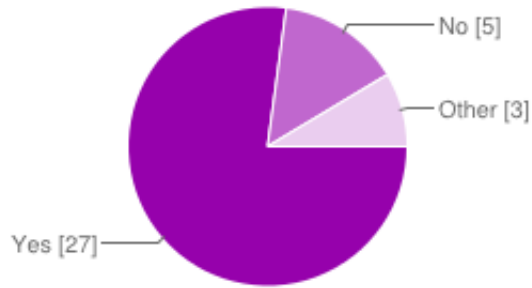

Web Frameworks	29	83%
Database Technologies	18	51%
Reporting/BI	10	29%
Scientific Computing	17	49%
Networking/Infrastructure	9	26%
APIs	22	63%
Software Design	18	51%
Software Craftmanship	17	49%
VIM/IDEs/EMACs/SublimeText	9	26%
Cloud/Hosting/PaaS/SaaS	15	43%
Testing UI/unit testing	18	51%
Other	3	9%

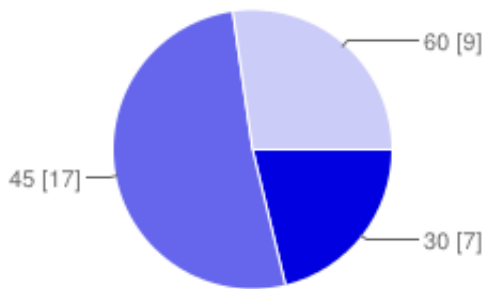

People may select more than one checkbox, so percentages may add up to more than 100%.

Would you like tutorial type talks?

Yes	27	77%
No	5	14%
Other	3	9%

How long should average talks be?

30	7	20%
45	17	49%
60	9	26%

Any suggestions or comments?

Having attended the successful PyOhio regional conference the last few years, my choices above reflect a lot of what they do. While they do have tutorials that are heavily attended, I find that those folks aren't necessarily involved with the rest of the conference. One thing that I think really makes a regional conference successful is encouraging first-time presenters. The groups are small enough that people won't feel intimidated. It's nice getting those seldom-heard voices out in front of people. I would love to help organize something like this. I answered that the average talks should be ...

Number of daily responses

